Reminiscing

'Tis a mild May evening-May 19 to be exact-in the old home town. Twenty-five years ago this very evening thirty-six of us hopeful, graduates walked from this venerable brick building which another crowd by ones and twos and fives is now approaching. For some this return is a rather routine matter; for others it is the first time in many years. But tonight New Knoxville alumni are remembering. And, for us, tonight is a particular time for remembering-twenty-five years! Will we recognize one another? How much will each of us have changed?

Our Dun and Bradstreet secretary, Mary Bambauer, has tried several times during these years to keep us all in touch by starting round-robin letters. Good old Mary with her happy disposition! What a yearbook she gave New Knoxville when she was editor! 'Twould be no surprise if thirty-six of those red and white volumes returned this evening with their owners who have remembered her hard, patient efforts.

The flight here for tonight's reunion was surely more delightful after I discovered that one of the stewardesses aboard was also bound for my destination. At first when I saw her chatting with her friend I wasn't sure; I looked again-yes, that engaging smile and those sparkling brown eyes above that trimly uniformed figure had to be Elsie Stienke. We revived old memories for several hours until she left the plane at St. Louis to join Doris Klopfenstein. It seems that those two girls during Freshmen high school days had taken an unforgettably fun-filled trip to Texas, changing trains at St. Louis, and this was their chance to relive those humorous experiences again. Pleasant, quiet, neat Doris was exactly the personality for a most successful receptionist at the terminal.

Is there a faint fragrance of popcorn in the air? Could Jerry Lehman our plump, jovial "popcorn boy" have arrived already and be remembering at the old popcorn machine in the basement turning out more bags of popcorn just as he did so faithfully at every basketball game? Jerry was the kind of fellow who gave his best whether popping corn or playing Tiny Tim at Christmas or MacDonald in the senior play.

Somebody must be rehearsing for the program this evening. Who could forget those rich tones when Kenneth Kuck sang solos or gave his support to the bass section of the high school chorus? Reformation Church in Washington, D.C. where he is Civil Service Chief "knows the Lord is nigher" when he leads out with Old Hundred. There's another voice - - that beautiful alto! I remember - - quiet Janet Hoge - - now she's letting folks know she can sing.

There's the reception committee. Those Senior home economics girls learned to do things right. I remember when they even cleaned and rehung all the pictures appropriately in the high school rooms. There's tall, serene, smiling Joyce Bambauer, short, jolly Mary Bierbaum, pretty, thoughtful Sandra Elshoff, and efficient Delores Ott at the alumni files. Remember how often she straightened out the cards in the library charging files? Those girls' well-kept homes probably take all the prizes in Better Homes and Gardens contests!

Wouldn't you know - somebody's handing out souvenir Ivy Logs! How well I remember Doris Heidt's ceaseless work on that literary journal. There's her editorial, "How to Keep Young Married Couples Happy on the Farm." And here's Rosalyn Eschmeyer Rump's class news. She was our hard-working reporter during our senior year. Look at the advertisers who support the paper now: Henschen Holstein Herds - - Donny will insist that we drink milk tonight instead of coffee; James A. Kuck and Sons - - fine walnut lumber - - yes, Jim used to urge tree conservation in his F.F.A. speeches; and another Henschen farmer - - it's no surprise that Bill owns most of the land east of town including the two nurseries, for he always was a hard worker.

Who are the janitors who keep this old school building so neat and clean? What's that noise behind the stage curtains? Isn't that a wet mop swishing around back there? And those two guys carrying the scrub bucket? Wouldn't you know? Larry Howe always was a big part of dramatics class plays and he's still on stage! And his two assistants - - the three stooges never separated - Larry Elshoff and Larry Longworth still arranging, polishing, cleaning up the clutter.

There's the long and the short of it. Tall, blonde, laughing Gary and short, dark Don. I've heard that after Gary Katterheinrich sold all the hogs he raised on Grandpa's farm he bought a partnership in Don Kiefer's Paint and Body Shop. Their best customer continues to be happy-go-lucky Darrell Kuck. While the fenders of his Volkswagon (always furnished now for the president of the school board) are being ironed out, Darrell stretches out on Doctor Deke's cot (Gene Deerhake has replaced the retired Dr. Wolfe across the street) and has his cuts and bruises patched. The doctor's best nurse, Patty Laughlin, became tired of assisting with the same patient every third day, so she moved into the health room of the school. That's right - - this old place was remodeled the year we were Seniors. She must operate a real clinic-her she administers vitamins and No-Nod pills to each pupil every morning.

There's few classes who have been as loyal to the old Alma Mater as ours. Remember how easy-going Tom Kuck kept every movie projector and spotlight in correct adjustment. And he's still at it. When he graduated from Ohio Northern's School of Engineering, he felt indebted to his high school for the experience he had acquired here and he revamped the entire lighting and sound system. There's a TV panel installed in one entire wall of each classroom and lounge, floodlights for all stages and speech laboratories and he provides full maintenance free of charge.

Ghosts of the managers' room! Purveyors of chewing gum, mothballs, and towels! Doesn't it look familiar to see Don Clausing and Allan Smith climbing the stairs from that sanctum? Hope Ronnie has all his equipment and suits in tip-top order or they'll assure him the place wasn't neglected that way in their day. Ronnie Howe felt that home territory offered the best athletic opportunities so his baseball, basketball, football and track teams have covered the place with glory and lined the entire lower hall, north and south, with trophy cases. Bob Wierwille's youngest, lankiest son is aiming at a pole-vaulting record.

It's no difficult matter to guess who'll be in charge of all matters small and large for tonight's reunion. Dependable Larry Snyder, president at some time of nearly every group he ever belonged to, wired me from Iraq where he's in the diplomatic service, that he wouldn't miss being toastmaster tonight for all the oil in the country. The committee has lined up a tremendous program: Marta Hoge will fly in from Pasadena where she works all year auditioning, selecting, and advising the marching bands for the Rose Bowl Parade; and Jean Gritzmaker will come in from the east, the Julliard School of Music, where she is an organ instructor.

Sandra Lammers in her characteristically frank, direct manner made innovations in the standard forms of cheerleading, so the University of Chicago instituted a revolutionary new sports program in that traditionally academic institution.

Emma Jane was so astute as to see where she could contribute to southern culture so the Roode Dance Studio moved to New Orleans and yearly visitors to the Mardi Gras report that the improvement in the dance routines is remarkable. Did I say the program tonight will be tremendous? When Marta, Jean, Sandy and Emma Jane demonstrate their techniques, and our two soloists sing, the old school will burst its seams with pride.

Emma Jane Roode and Kenneth Schrolucke were a clever team back in 1958 emceeing for the Youth Center variety shows but Kenneth became interested in his country's newly adopted fiftieth state. So with his sheepskin from Ohio State clutched tightly under his arm, he manfully turned his eyes from the pulchritude on the Waikiki beaches, and for several hours daily he patiently teaches his sun-tanned little kindergartners arithmetic as they count endless rows of clamshells and flocks of sea gulls.

I had better see more of this building before we're called to dinner. Here's the office. Dependable Doris Schroer - - always willing to do what must be done - - operate the duplicator, substitute for elementary teachers, collect the lunch money, answer the phone - - and she's still at it. Hope she'll be able to enjoy our anniversary dinner without any interruption. Dinner? Wonder who's chef de cuisine tonight? This must be the hall leading to - - what a stainless steel palace! And that tall, dark haired lady giving directions? Linda Kattman I'm sure. She was wise to follow in her Mother's place serving such varied and tasty cafeteria lunches. We'll have a real dinner.

Yes, we're remembering tonight. What pleasant memories!

Class History

In September 1947, the class of '59, twenty-two well-scrubbed little boys and fourteen cherubic little girls, leaving their adoring mamas, entered that wonderland known as a first grade to be mothered by Mrs. Caroline Holtkamp. She was sometimes less impressed by their impromptu babblings than were their mamas and they duly found their mouths taped as a gentle reminder. But they loved the little walks they took, with more freedom to chatter endlessly about the big trees and beautiful birds and flowers. Patricia Laughlin of St. Marys joined the class during the first year.

The next year Mrs. Araminta Grimes accepted thirty-six of them along with two additional aspirants: Johnny Huelsmeyer from Anna and Marcia Kiefer from Huntington Park, California. Their chattering continued as was evidenced by the use of the chatterbox into which names of the garrulous were dropped and the guilty sacrificed their recesses as a result. This is the age of osculation (as more than one second-grade teacher will testify) and because of his ardor one of the boys was required to kiss the girls' dolls.

On to the third grade marched the thirty-eight to be guided by Miss Edna Katterheinrich. Here Joseph Kohler joined the group and Johnny Huelsmeyer and Marcia Kiefer moved from the community. Here they learned Bible verses every week, memorized the Ten Commandments, thrilled over writing poetry, beat out measured cadences in a lusty rhythm band, and, believe it or not, clapped their hands appreciatively upon the appearance of test papers!

A new decade - 1950 - and these eager beavers, joined by Michael Daniels, Mary Bierbaum of Chicago, and Larry Snyder of Botkins surged into Room 17, to fairly worship their teacher Mrs. Ruth Miller from St. Marys. Delores Ott and Dennis Hartman missed all this joy by moving from the community but the remaining thirty-eight labored assiduously all morning to prepare lessons so that they might attain the entire last period as a promised recess.

1951 - and growing up seemed to become more difficult. Certain standards of achievement and behavior were expected and where they did not measure up mentally and socially (as happened frequently) they bent down physically while Mr. John Musser applied the paddle up and down the aisles. Karen Smith left this sad situation during the year but Carolyn Shroyer took her place. There were compensations, however, for frequently the entire group engaged in intramural basketball games, ten or more of the class as players, several girls as cheerleaders and the remainder cheering wildly these strategic endeavors.

Mr. C. R. Stienecker assumed responsibility for the guidance of thirty-seven sixth grade hopefuls after Joseph Kohler and Michael Daniels left them and Doris Klopfenstein had joined the class. Now the group became patriotic, even internationally minded, making dozens of flags to represent all countries and producing a quite impressive program from the project. To develop artistic abilities the girls made treasure chests' full of bracelets and necklaces of luster lace while the boys twisted rope and constructed birdhouses. The social high light of the year was a hayride (minus the hay) aboard a schoolbus to a party at the Gritzmeyer home.

Junior High! Upstairs at last in Room 22 with Mrs. Newell as advisor. Carolyn Shroyer moved from the community but Delores Ott returned and Larry and Ronnie McKibben joined the group. Another class party was a high light of this year. This time a prize was offered - a bloomer in a box, the winner to wear the prize the rest of the evening. The bloomer was revealed to be a flower.

For the final elementary year Mr. Musser again took charge of the group - now thirty-nine in number, Della Homan having joined the class. Since junior high people endeavor to measure up socially to their elders, the eighth grade gave an unforgettable Halloween masquerade party with prizes for the prettiest, funniest and most original.

High School attained! The McKibben brothers and John Scheble decided to leave them but they were happy to accept Emma Jane Roode from Moulton and Elsie Stienke from Wapakoneta. They immediately offered their abilities to high school activities, contributing two cheerleaders, eight basketball players, nine baseball players, fourteen members to the school band, and most of the class to the school chorus. Mrs. Haberkamp shepherded this ambitious flock, that promoted such a huge light bulb sale for the benefit of their class treasury that the community is still aglow.

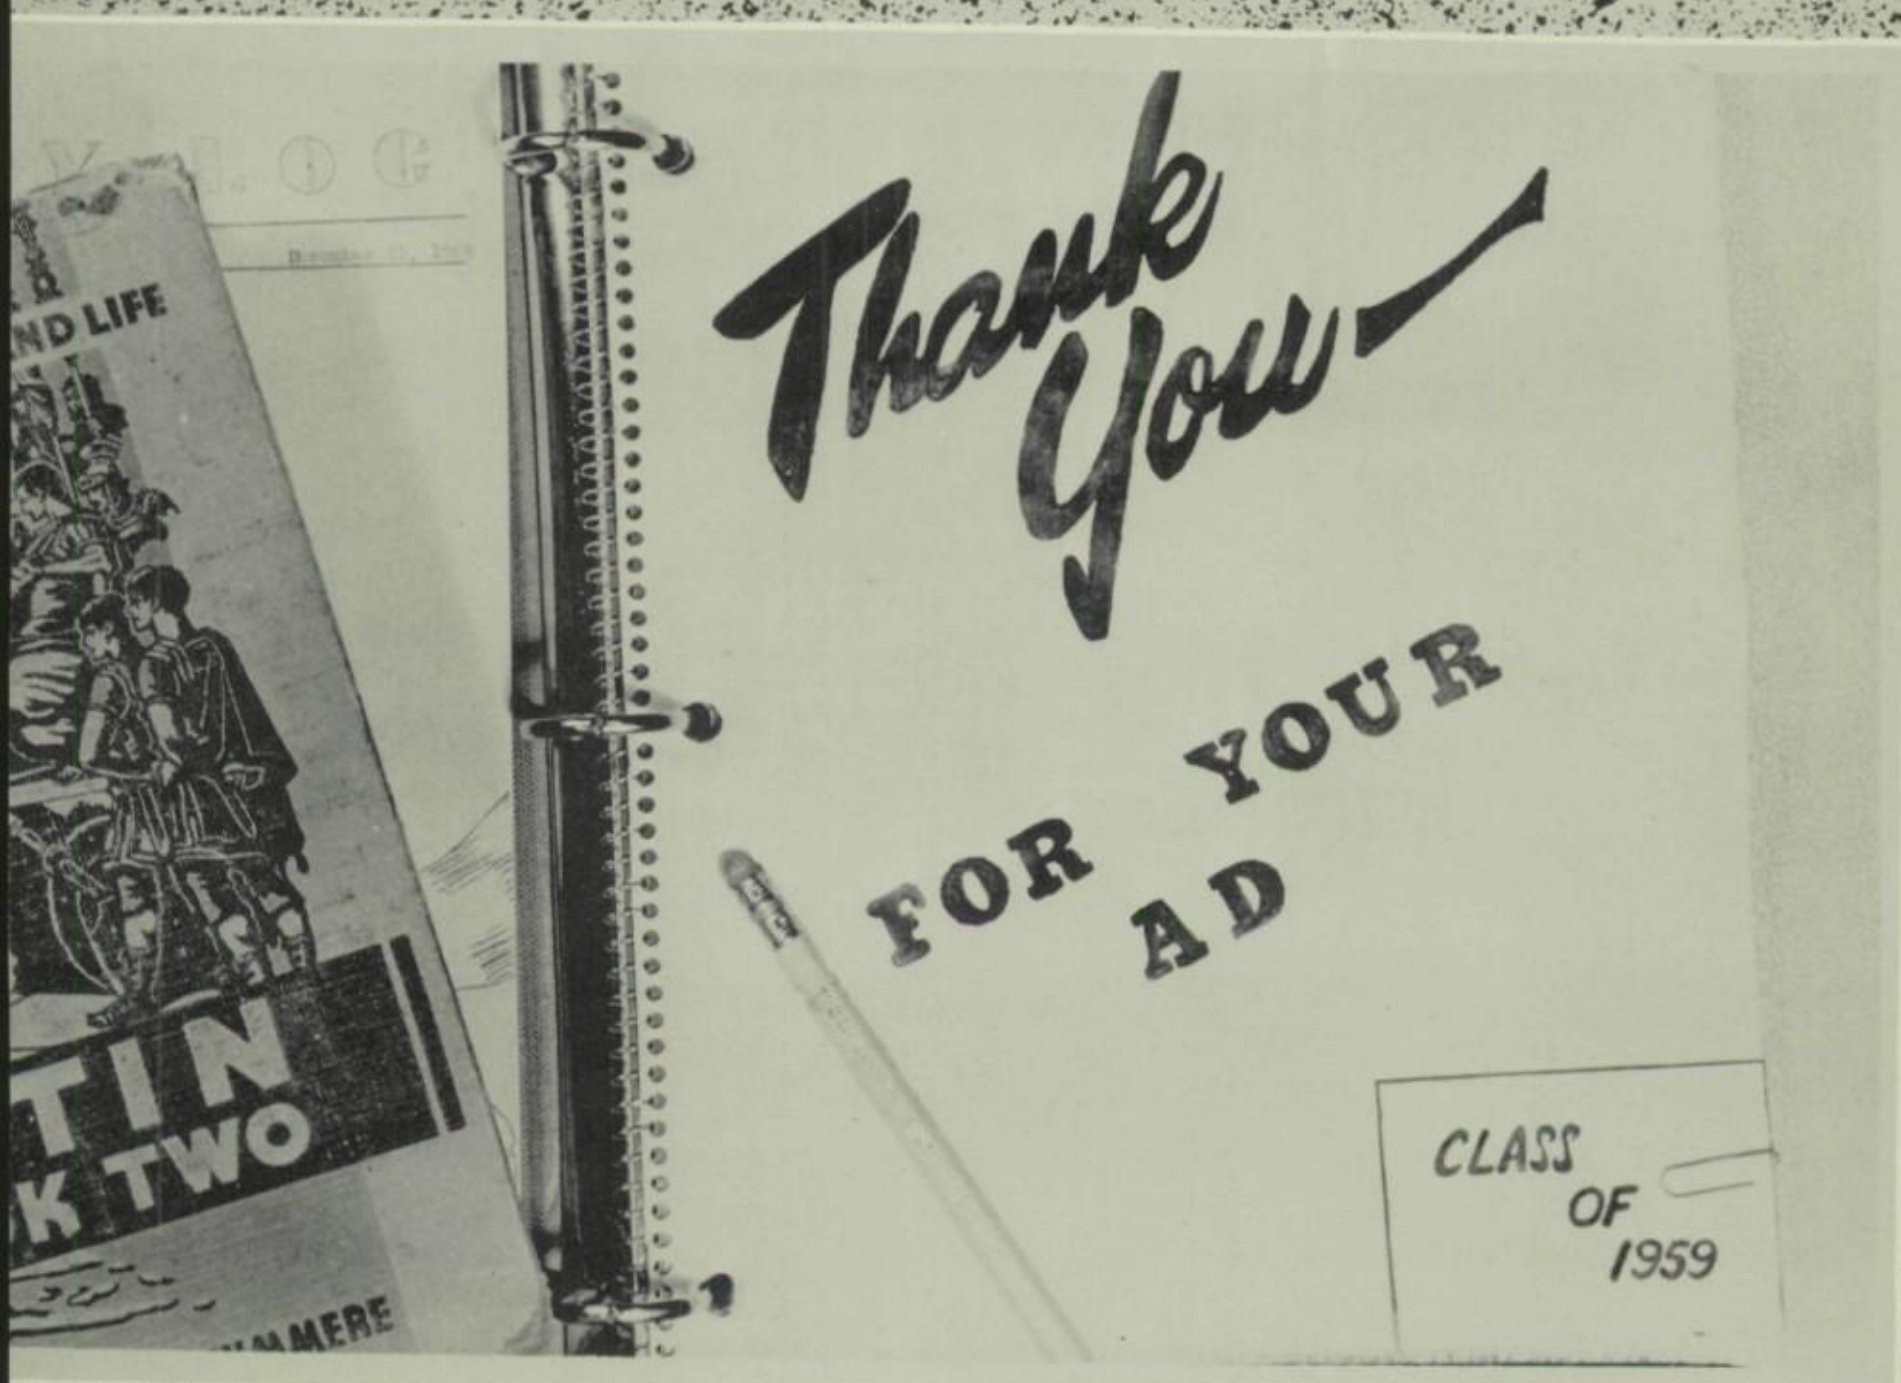

Under Mr. Kelly's watchful eye the Sophomores with all second year sophistication had the high honor of initiating the Freshmen at a Broomstick Ball. They continued their contributions to all school activities and one of their number also represented the F.F.A. at the National Convention in Kansas City.

The Junior year with Mr. Hoover's capable direction added to the regular school activities the purchase of class rings: another party, "Springtime Jamboree;" a class play, "The More the Merrier;" and the annual reception honoring the Seniors "Rendezvous of the Stars".

Then the last and coveted Senior year! There was the most successful class play "The Egg and I"; the beautiful but nostalgic reception, this time as guests: the sights of New York for four days, then the sacred baccalaureate service and commencement night, their farewell to the community, when thirty-five Seniors said "thank you" for twelve years of opportunity to mature and develop.

Of The
New Knoxville School District*

The Seniors of 1959 wish to sincerely thank all who were in any way responsible for making the publication of this Memoir possible. It has been a pleasure to have had this opportunity to record some of the activities and memories of our school years.

We feel sure that the students of New Knoxville School, and you also, will have many cherished memories as you read and enjoy this Memoir now, and in the years to come.
